Tacky Party.

On Tuesday evening, October 31, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Corbin most delightfully entertained the members of the Fancy Work Club to-gether with their friends to a 'tacky party.' There was no difficulty in finding the place, as two large Jack-o-Lanterns adorned the front gate posts. The guests were received by a huge ghost, and from his attitude, each knew a pleasant time was in view.

The members of the club were dressed as ghosts, gypsies and Indian girls, and others were in doubt as to what they represented but were quite sure the 'adjective of the evening' was appropriate in the description of their costume.

Only two of the boys were brave enough to venture out in costumes representing a clown, and we will risk saying the other a colored minister. No little time with laughter and excitement was spent in determining just 'who was who.' Several original and unique contests and games had been arranged by the host and hostess. An atmosphere of stillness and wonder prevailed in the room when a witch entered carrying a broom of different colored straws and requested each guest to break one of the straws from the broom, as usual each color, with a taste of 'mysterious gum' and 'bitter cup' assured health, wealth and prosperity.

About ten o'clock the guests were invited to the dining room which had been artistically decorated in Jack-o-Lanterns, autumn leaves, and yellow crepe paper, where a lunch was served consisting of pumpkin pie, ginger bread, sweet cider, popcorn and apples.

At a late hour, after everyone was sure their buggy wheels and harness had been unmolested, departed assuring Mr. and Mrs. Corbin of having spent an unusual pleasant evening.

The following members and guests were present: Mesdames Ben Wessel and E. L. Neer, Misses Sarah and Virgie Corbin, Margie and Mattie Swain, Anna Mae Darnell, Anna Lee Updike, Nannie Brown, Dean Dysart, Ruth Lewis, and Voorhies Trent. Messrs. Ed Winn, D. J. and Thompson Updike, E. L. Neer, Frank Ridgeway, Lawrence Lewis, Forrest Bell, Verne Vaughan and Time Dysart.
